Vance delays Syrian visit

RIYADH, Sept. 22 (Agencies) — U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance Friday announced a 24-hour delay of his trip to Syria following a request by President Hafez Assad.

Vance had been scheduled to fly from Rivadh to Damascus Saturday for the final leg of a three-nation Middle East mission to explain and canvass support for the Camp David Assad asked for the delay because the meeting of the "Steadfastness Front" of countries opposing the two Israeli-Egyptian accords had oot yet eoded in Damascus. U.S. officials said they understood that the meeting would be over by Saturday.

Spokesman Hodding Carter said Vance would extend his stay io Riyadh hy a day.

Earlier Thursday, Vance was received hy King Khaled at a meeting attended hy Crown Prince Fahd, Minister of Defense and Aviation Prince Sultan, the Kiog's Personal Advi-ser Dr. Rashad Pharaon and Sheikh Ahdul Rahman Man-souri, deputy foreign mioister for political affairs.

Later in the day. Prince Fahd held a separate meeting with Vance which was also attended hy Prioce Sultao, Dr. Pharaon and Sheikh Abdul Rahman. Vance was the guest of a Vance's talks with King Hussein and Saudi leaders had proceeded just about as expected by the secretary of state, a U.S. official said.

He explained: 'They were. asking the kind of questions we anticipated would be of interest: 'Why wasn't Jerusalem included in the peace framework? What will the supplementary letters say?"

Vance told reporters he felt his urgent mission to the Jordanian and Saudi leaders had accomplished something of importance.

"Namely," he said, "I, had a chance to really discuss with them and get the questions sein talks had been "frank that they had with respect to what took place at Camp David and what came out of Camp David, and to answer their questions about the framework agreement - where there was ambiguity, to clarify the meaning and intent of the parties."

Vance said his trip had been absolutely essential, and that leaders in both couotries told him the exchanges were helpful and important, Vance had modest hopes for the mission when he set out from Washington Tuesday night.

Public expectations for a more tangible result may have been raised by President Carter, who announced the trip

24 hours earlier as an attempt to explain the accords to Jordan and Saudi Arabia "and to secure their support."

Although he seems to have made little headway toward either goal, Vance has begun a process which in American opinion, may permit the U.S. slowly to build a favorable consensus in the Arah world.

suppose that the Camp David agreements were meant to he a final settlement.

"At Camp David we put to-gether only a framework for a comprehensive settlement, including the Sioai, and all other parties are invited to take part in the settlement." he said.

"We shall still need some very hard negotiating — hut always around a table. There will be no more explosions." The president spoke of the Middle East crisis as a bomb and contended that it had now been defused. He said there would be no more war and that the accords marked a turning point in the history of the conflict with Israel.

Sadat said he had a long meeting Friday morning with King Hassan and Moroccan government leaders to give them full details oo the Camp David accords and answer their questions.

The king had wanted firsthand ioformation on the sum-mit before making decisions about it, the Egyptiao leader said.

"Nothing was hidden between me on the one hand and King Hassao and his govern-ment," Sadat said. "It is up to them to take whatever decisions they like."

Sadat is due to leave the Moroccan capital for home Satorday. He said his next moves would be to communicate to all other Arab heads of state the full details of the Camp David accords and to explain them to his own people.

He said that after the Israel parliament met to approve the dismantling of Israeli settlements in the Sinai. a meeting would be prepared "at which we shall agree upon the West Bank and the Gaza Strip and Sinai.

"The possibility of peace io the Middle East has seldom been greater. Whether that possibility is realized will depend on the degree to which all concerned cao act. in the prayer's words. 'with a single heart.'"

Meanwhile, the White House Friday issued nine letters resulting from the Camp David summit, but could not produce a key letter on the divisive issue of Israeli settlements on the West Bank, (Text of letters

The letters expressed the views of the leaders of Israel, Egypt and the United States on various poiots of the Middle East peace process which were not included in the agreemeots signed Sunday night. But the letters released Fri-

As expected, Friday's letters ehowed that Israel could only agree to disagree with the U.S. and Egypt on the status of Jerusalem despite the 13 days of intensive negotiations.
In a letter to President Carter dated last Sunday, the final day of the summit, Israell Prime Minister Menahem Begin stated that Israel regarded Jerusalem as its capital and 'one city indivisible." Two other letters must be exchanged to clear up the paperwork left over from the summit. One concerns two airfields the U.S. has offered to build Israel in the Negev Desert and the other on the still unsettled issue of West Baok settlements.

Following the summit, the Uoited States and Israel have been in dispute over what the three parties agreed to say io that letter.

appeals for communist aid

LUSAKA, Sepi. 22 (R) -South West Africa's main black nationalist group Friday appealed to Communist countries for all-out military aid to step up its fight against South African rule there.

Vice-President Misheke Muyungo of the South West Africa People's Organization (SWAPO), waging a low-level guerrilla war there, voiced the call at a press conference following Pretoria's decision earlier this week to press ahead with its own territorial election plan.

"We will intensify the armed struggle and liquidate whichever puppet regime Pretoria is trying to install in Namibia." Muyungo, speaking under portraits of Marxist leaders including Cuban President Fidel Castro, said:

Smith awaits U.S. response to visa request

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP) — Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith has applied for a visa to visit the United States next month but a State Department official said Thursday that no decisioo has been made on whether to grant it.

The application was made at a U.S. Consulate in South Africa and the consulate asked Washingtoo for "an advisory opinion.

It was not clear here whether Smitb's application was or accompanied by especially the socialist countries, to render all-out military assistance to SWAPO, including hardware and technical know-how, so that we can effectively wage the war to its logical conclusions."

Muyungo also said that SWAPO, would need to be very strongly convinced before cooperating again with Western peace moves.

More weapnns are needed. he said, now that South Africa has announced it will hold unilateral elections on Nov. 20 for independence of Nami-

The announcement by outgoing Prime Minister Vorster on Wednesday, prompted sharp reactions at the United Nations and among Western governments.

The United Nations and the South African government had been engaged in negotiations over a U.N. proposal for an internationally supervised transition to independence in South West Africa.

The territory has been administered by the South Africans under a mandate from the old League of Nations.

SWAPO has been prepared to take part in elections as long as the United Nations guaranteed the fairness of the process, but it has refused to participate in an election process solely sponsored by South Africa.

India sees no arms race inherent in jet purchase

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (Agencies)—The Indian Embassy Thursday denied that its plans to buy military strike aircraft costing up to $2 billion could touch off a fresh arms race with Pakistan:

U.S. Ambassador Robert F. Goheen in remarks to foreign correspondents in New Delhi. He said a new arms race would divert funds from development on the sub-continent.

'Roots' author ruled innocent in plagiary suit

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (AP) A federal judge Thursday rejected claims that material for the best-selling book "Roots" was copied by author Alex Haley from the works of another writer.

District Judge Marvin E. Frankel ruled that the catalog of alleged similarities cited by Margaret Walker Alexander was "strained, insignificant and devoid of legal substance."

He dismissed twin copyright infringement actions brought by Ms. Alexander against Haley and his publisher. Doubleday

The embassy said in a statemeni ihai India was not expanding its air force strength but merely replacing aircraft which had become obsolescent

"We do not believe that such a replacement will trigger an The suggestion was made by arms race in the Subcontinent, or divert funds from economic development to defense."

Goheen also said on Thursday India is too strong to fret about possible new U.S. military aid to Pakistan.

"Our own assessment is that Indian superiority is so great that a limited supply (of arms) to Pakistan should not cause the consternation it is causing in the (Indian) press these

With its size and military strength, Goheen said, India has to live with the problem that its neighbors may threatened, "The buildup of the Indian navy is not-to some people, at least-ao enlirely comforting thing."

"We applaud the efforts; of the Indian government" made recently to overcome traditional enmilies and suspicions among nations of the Subcontinent". Goheen said.

The ambassador said that the U.S. intelligence network in India is much smaller than Russia's and it does not try to subvert the government or influence Indian politics.

He claimed that former Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's frequent charges of Central Intelligence Agency plots against her were unfounded, and Mrs. Gandhi berself . has never produced evidence support them.

Detroit blacks acquire railroad

LANSING, Michigan, Sept. 22 (AP) - An agreement establishing what is believed to be the first black-owned railroad in the United States was announced Thursday by the Michigan Department of High-ways and Transportation.

The agreement allows a group of black Detroit businessmen to assume control of the 41.7-mile Kent-Barry-Eaton connecting railway between Grand Rapids and Vermont-ville, Michigan

The rail line serves a rural area, primarily grain shippers. Now run by Conrail, a U.S. government agency, the railway gets a state subsidy of about $310,000 a year.

Flaming oil gushes from storage cavern Louisiana swamp HACKBERRY, Louisiana, Sept. 22 (AP) - A 90-meterhigh pillar of fire visible for 40 kilometers spewed out of a 294 million-gallon underground cavern of the nation's strategic oil reserve Thursday night.

One man working on a drilling platform died of burns suffered when the oil burst from the shaft, bypassing a safety device.

The fire was under control three hours after it erupted but it was still burning fiercely. Two fire trucks pumped constant streams of water on the flames.

"A workover rig was performing a standard oil field operation, drilling a hole into the cavern, when it blew oul and ignited," said Bill Parker, deputy project manager for the Strategic Petroleum Reserve.
"We don't know what happened but it's still an awesome sight.

Seven million barrels of oil were in the cavern under pressure of 650 pounds per square inch, forcing the oil back up through the well hole.

We are going to have 25,000 to 30,000 barrels come out of there before the pressure is equalized," he said.
"First we have got to get the fire out, then stop the oil."
Troubleshooters were summoned to try to smother the towering flames, and then close the well hole which extends down 3.240 feet into the roof of the cavern.

The cavern is no. 6, located out at the fringe of a series. of so-called bottles. Each is about the size of a 10-story building a block long and a block wide.

It is an isolated swamp area. about 20 miles south of Lake Charles, Louisiana, with no residential areas nearby. It sits some 50 miles east of Beaumont, Texas, where an onrelated blowout at a gas well drilling project forced the evacuation of about 1,000 nearby residents Thursday. The U.S. government hopes to have a 250-million-barrel strategic petroleum reserve by Dec. 22 and to double that figure by the end of 1980

The government has said that 500 million barrels of crude oil would suffice for two months.

Carter's policies ruined fighting inflation--Ford

WASHINGTON. Sept. 22 (AP) - U.S. President Jimmy Carter's policies have "made a chambles" of the economy and mined the fight against inflation, former President Gerald R. Ford said.

"The Carter administration is responsible for it and they'll have to explain it to the housewife." Ford said.

He put the blame for a return to an inflation rate of 10 per cent or more to two successive "expansionary" federal budgets introduced by Carrer. Latest government figures show the annual inflation rate as of July at 9.7 per cent.

"They've done a very poor job," Ford said. "They've blown it as far as the economy

Egyptian, American scientists to study desert encroachment

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 AP) - Using space satellites to chart their course, U.S. and Egyptian scientists venture next week into an Egyptian desert seeking information that could slow the steady encroachment of deserts everywhere onto fertile soil.

The two-week, 1,000-mile adventure will take the explorers through massive sand dunes and trackless wastes once roamed by nomads and camel caravans, which look intriguingly like areas on Mars photographed by America's Viking spacecraft.

The desert is the most desolate region of Egypt, where temperatures climb to 40 degrees celsius io the suo and plunge nearly to zero after

There are 33 men, including drivers and guides, and one woman in the joint expedition, which will set out Monday in four-wheel-drive vehicles from el Kharga, about 520 kilometers south of Cairo.

They head southwest toward the oases of Bir Tarfawi and Bir Misaba before striking due west to their main goals. Oweinat Mountain and Gilf Kehir

The principal test site is the Oweinst Mountain area where the caravan will camp for four

"It is here that we find the surface streak and sand dune features that are most similar to Mars," said Dr. Ted A. Maxwell, one of the American geologists who works for the Smithsonian Institution's National Air and Space Museum.

"Once we see what causes the colors and streaks at Oweinat we can compare them with the Viking photos of Mars. We might learn more about the form and structure of Maxwell said archeologists also will search for artifacts in the area. "We know the Oweinat area was arable land about 3,000 to 4,000 years ago and that people lived here," he said. "Shepherds left their marks on the mountainsides in the form of rock art or painted pictures." The Gilf Kebir plateau, where the expedition will camp for three days, also may provide clues about Mars.

"The plateau is dissected by canyons, probably from water erosion, which look very much like erosion patterns on Mars. Maxwell said

Tracking the scientists all the way will be the National Aernnautics and Space Administration's Nimbus-6 satellite, which will receive signals from an expedition radio beacon and relay them to the agency's Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Maryland.

The signals will enable scientists to pinpoint the group's location and later to locate where samples were taken and observations made.

Heading the expedition is Dr. Farouk el-Buz, research director of the center for earth and planctury studies at the air and space museum. Baz, a native Egyptian, once instructed American astronauts on the seology of the moon.

Among other Americans on the team are an archeologist and three geologists from the U.S. Genlogical Survey, including the lone woman, Carol Breed of Flagstaff. Arizona. They will be inined by scientists from Ain Shams University in Cairo and the geological survey of Egypt.

"We are now at a stage where we must asquire a better understanding of the desert environment and of the ways and means to tame it, lest more areas of the earth become was-teland," Baz said He noted that Tunisia has lost about half its arable land to desert.

TOUGH BARGAINING

The ground has still not settled after the big Camp David quake. Secondary tremors are taking all kinds of shapes: A Middle East tour for Secretary Vance, a summit conference for the "Steadfastness states", a U.S.-Israeli "dispute" over the interpretation of a clause on settlements and subdued efforts by moderate Arab states to convene a summit conference to salvage what is left of Arab credibility.

In the midst of this rubble, the pivotal role of Jordao in deciding the fate of the Camp David agreements cannot be exaggerated. This is on the assumption that the positions of the Syrians and Palestinians are unalterable. Jordan has already rejected or made reservations against the Camp David clauses, Mr, Vance heard the same views the next day when he visited Amman and the Jordanian position of hostile hesilation rather than outright opposition may continue for a while, King Hussein is already coming under tremendous pressure from the Americans and the injectionist Arab states. and so far he tills toward the latter.

One sure way of securing his opposition in the agreements is for the Palestine resistance movement to build new bridges with Amman.

The world has changed since September, 1970, and June. 1971, and the causes of the old conflict between the king and the resistance movement have been completely overtaken by recent events, Relations between Amman and the resistance today are not as bitter as they used to be but they are still, at best, cool and the absence of conflict does not necessarily mean cooperation.

Today, the Jordanian government and the resistance movement share the fear that the Camp David agreements might legalize the Israeli occupation of the West Bank and Gaza Strip or a form of it. They are equally anxious about the future of Jerusalem which the agreements have ominously side-stepped. If their position is sincere-and there is no reason to suspect that they are not—their only chance of doing something about it is to join hands with the people of the occupied territories. There is no force in the world that can force a decision on them if they stand together.

The Jordanian government should not be hard to convince. There is nothing in the agreements for it and very little for the West Bankers and Gazans, Jordan is offered a security role that could end up with a lame self-rule program under Israeli domination. But King Hussein may be worried that the opposition to the Camp David agreements is not serious enough. The combined power of the opposing states is not even near that of Israel and past experience concerning their attempts at unified action is not encouraging. The leaders now meeting in Damascus have themselves admitted their failure so far to present a meaningful front and have vowed that this time it will be different. King Hussein will be watching developments closely.

His position will also be influenced by the attitudes of the other Arab states. So far, all states which have reacted to the Camp David agreements have rejected the parts concerning the Palestinians and Jerusalem. The rejection has come in varying degrees of intensity and Mr. Vance is around to probe any weak noints, if the rejection proves more than an emotional outburst that fizzles out in a few weeks. King Hussein will have more reason to side with the majority of the Arabs. The days ahead will see even tougher bargaining than what took place at Camp David.

Dollar slide benefits

WASHINGTON -

The slide of the dollar, the rise of the yen and the German mark, and other exchange rate changes during the past year and a half "should lead to a substantial improvement in the pattern of trade balances among industrial countries. during the next two to three years," studies by the Inter-national Monetary Fund (IMF) indicate.

The beneficial effects would include a reduction in U.S. deficit in transactions with the rest of the world and a Japanese surplus.

The 1978 IMF annual report, released Sept. 17 a week before the scheduled annual meetings of the IMF and World Bank, said that at least for the major industrial nations, changes in exchange rates really do lead to adjustments in the external balance and in the direction commonly expected. For the United States. Japan. France, and Sweden. the report says, a 10 per cent depreciation in the currency can be expected to produce a seven per cent increase in the country's volume of exports, but it might require up to three years for the effect to be fully felt. The effect in other industrial oations would less, but still positive. An appreciation, or rise. in value of a currency would produce the opposite effect.

Imports are also affected. Among the t4 industrial nations studied a ten per cent appreciation or depreciation of a currency would result io a trospect, it can be said that one to six per cent rise or what was disturbing about the decline, respectively in volume of imports.

The IMF conclusions refute the contention of some experts who have argued in recent years that exchange rate changes are not effective in promoting adjustment in the international balance of pay-

But the IMF annual report also noted that cyclical factors the variations in rates of economic growth among different countries and from one year to another - can have a greater effect on international payments balances than price changes or exchange rate adjustments.

For this reason the report stressed the importance of implementation by the industrial nations of the program of coocerted but differentiated growth strategies developed over the past six months and endorsed at the IMF interim committee in Mexico City in April, by the OECD (Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development) meeting in Paris in June, and at the seven-nation economic summit meeting in Bonn in July. This concept calls for a slow-down in the economic growth rate in the United States. additional economic stimulus in the Federal Republic of Germany and Japan, and growth measures in other countries varying according to their particular situations.

Commenting on exchange market developments, the IMF report said that "in re-major exchange rate changes over the last few months of 1977 and the early months of 1978 was not so much the nature of the realignment that took place, but the speed with which it occurred and the disorderly and uncertain exchange market conditions that characterized the period."

It also commented: "It is important that the marked changes in exchange rates for the U.S. dollar, the Deutsche mark, and the yen over the past year and a balf be viewed in perspective. Al-though the dollar depreciated by 27 per cent against the yen and 13 per cent against the Deutsche mark from December 1976 to June 1978, it depreciated much less against most currencies and appreciated over the same period against some, such as the Canadian dollar and the Swedish krona, so that the decline in the effective rate for the U.S. dollar during these 18 months was only 9.5 per cent. In large part, the major exchange rate changes compensated for previous and concurrent differences in rates of increase domestic prices. Even after the recent rapid changes in exchange rates, the index of relative prices of German manufactures adjusted for exchange rate changes was about the same in the second quarter of 1978 as the average for 1973. Chances in corresponding relative prices for the United States (downward) and for Japan (upward) over the same period have been targe."—(USIS)

The Camp David agreements spell out a large role for Jordan in the tuture of the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip - a role which may pass in Egypt and the local Palestinians if King Hussein stays out of the peace

Vance can point out that Jordan is mentiuned by name 14 times in the Camp David 'framework" on the West Bank-Gaza issue, starting with a place at the negotiating table for a "resolution of the Palestinian problem in all its aspects" and ending with a peace treaty between Israel and Jordan.

The initial Jordanian reaction to the Camp David documents was non-commital but hardly favorable, as a cabinet statement said Jordan was not "legally or morally bound" by them. Hussein also avoided a chance to meet with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat in Могоссо.

What happens if Jordan refuses to join? Israeli Foreign Minister Mosbe Dayan. upon returning from Camp David. said the Egyptian delegation at the summit said "they would go un even without Jordan they won't back out just because Jordan wen't come or Dayan added, however that Jordan would be "decidedly important when we reach, after live years, the joint talks regarding a peace treats because a peace treaty should be concluded only between us and the Jordanians.

Against the attraction of an eventual peace treaty. Hussein can argue that the 1974 Rabat Arab summit took from Jordan the responsibility for negotiating over the West Bank and gave it to the Palestine Liberation Organization. Before abrogating that agree-ment, Hussein would want to assure himself of wide backiog in the Arab world, which so far is at best coul to the Camp David accords.

The agreements, worked out by Sadat, President Carler and Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin, say Jordan will be invited to "negotiate the details of a transitiunal arrangeto last five years in the West Bank and Gaza.

Cyprus: U.S. keep out

By Juliet Pearce

NICOSIA The latest American mission to test the political atmosphere Cyprus has left a mood of disappointment and frustration on both sides of the barricades.

Divided on almost every conceivable issue, the Greek and Turkish Cypriots appear to agree on one: the United States Nations was largely to humor and its diplomacy should keep the Greek side, which is preout of their dispute.

This was made abundantly elear during a four-day visit to Cyprus this month by U.S. State Department counsellor Matthew Nimetz, accompanied by three aides. His gruelling talks and exhausting meetings have not introduced a single new element into the situation. On the contrary the visit merely showed that the U.S. does not quite know how to cope with the delicate problem of the Eastern Mediterranean.

President Spyros Kyprianou, representing the Greek portion of Cyprus, and his Foreign Minister Nikos Rolandis reiterated that they have "reached safety limits" and no further Concessions were possible.

Turkish Cypriot leader Rauf Denktash said curtly, "the United States is not a party could not be a party to the Cyprus problem".

"I have no American plan. no other plan, no formula," Nimetz insisted somewhat lamely, stressing that be had come to Cyprus "to listen and made several proposals to get not to pressure anyone."

what he was trying to do was showed little new: the same to "see what role we can play" appeal for a loose federation to help the U.N. Secretary of the two sectors and only General Kurt Waldheim in get-marginal territorial concessions ting the intercommunal talks to the Greek side.

"Nothing new from Nimetz." and "Why is Nimetz here?" were some of the typical headlines. The answer is thought to be that Nimetz was simply gathering material for President Carter's report to Congress on the Cyprus situation, a chore that the American leader has to perform every two months.

The accent on the United paring a major diplomatic of-fensive before the autumn session of the U.N. General Assembly, starting September 25. Although the usual debate on Cyprus will not take place until November, Kyprianou will fly to New York for the opening ceremony.

It is clear why the Greek Cypriot put so much stress on the international nrganization: they are-well entrenched in various Third World bodies and can count on the support of the non-aligned countries.

Since the 1974 Greek coup in Cyprus which triggered the Turkish military occupation of 36 per cent of the island, there have been 18 Security Council resolutions and five General Assembly resolutions. All called for the withdrawal of foreign troops and for the "independence, sovereignly and territorial integrity" of Cyprus.

The Turks have ignored the resolutions and instead have the stalled intercommunal talks Subsequently, he did add that started again. Their position While the American arms refugees as soon as the inter-communal talks resumed. The Greeks rejected the offer as a "Turkish banana peel". Further probing disclosed that there were no guarantees that the returning refugees would have access to their places of work and to all their property or, for that matter would be allowed to stay permanently in Varosha.

The Turkish side replied through the usual propaganda broadsides which the two antagonists fire with regularity that all this would be resolved during negotiations. But in the wake of the Nimetz visit there are no signs that any talks are about to resume.—(OFNS)

With the emergence of China's new active global policy symbolized by Chairman Hua Kuo-feng'a European trip, the Russians appear to be alarmed by what they see as an extremely grave challenge to their interest

Soviet fears and anxieties are based less on China's capacity to effectively counter Kremlin positions, although ranking Soviet officials in private conversations are not trying to hide their concern.

The real source of alarm is the possibility of Sino-American cooperation or even tacit understanding which is viewed here as a prospect of significant switch in the strategie balance at Moscow's expense. Such a development would

Soviet bostility is so wide spread that even in conversations with ordinary Russians one frequently hears the term "yellow peril" accompanied by warnings that Americans should not be taken in by Chinese policies and that ultimately Europe and North America would have to contain Chinese "expansionism."

Soviet officials do not use racist terminology, but they do not bide their concern that the Carter administration may be tempted by opportunities China's new and broad challenges to Moscow present. — (WP)

Sand blasts across the desert by sail

By Joyce Prince

RIYADH - Who needs water when you have sand!

If heating is your idea of a good time, the land-locked areas of Saudi Arabia offer every bit as much toss of wind and wave as the oceans. Try sand-sailing.

A tirst sailing excursion can be a "sand blast" to say the least as you roll along in your sailing machine that resembles something out of the "Chitty Chitty Bang Bang" creations.

A fun loving entrepreneur shipped ten of these remarkable buggies out from the United States to the capital city of Saudi Arabia. They are fast becoming the "talks of the sands."

Sand yachts are built very simply of one-and-one-half inch aluminum tubing with three one-toot bailoon rubber tires. They are set in a triangle shape, similar to an ice boat, the wheels at each vertex with the huge lightweight dacroo sail tlapping just above your head. The base lies no further than the to six inches above the ground.

In one magical gust of arid wind, one can become a part of the parched desert. Rolling along at approximately 15 miles an hour tyour speed depending upon the wind: you can reach 50 miles an hour and they have been known to go as tast as 120 miles an hour), the sand beneath becomes a veritable ocean of tinted browns.

The seat is set on the back metal pipe and is merely a plastic chair that resembles an ordinary kitchen chair without the legs. Set into the side of the chair is a car seat-helt. It becomes very comfortable as you stretch your legs straight out in Iront, putting your feet on the small rudder which by pushing right or left turns the front wheel. The principles are the same as controlling a boat in water us it is like any "slooping" without a jib, just a main

It is quite possible that this self-sufficient sand buggy will become the sportsman's dream; after all, once the initial cost is passed, it needs very alittle, care. Repair is almost nil and it requires shoring only the sail and the chair covering. You do not need to feed or water it, no gas is needed for its mubility. Where else could you find such fun for so little?

If there had been a convenient fishing lake or even a bowling alley around. Tony Beal may never have found the delightful sport.

Tony, a medical physicist at King Faisal Specialist Hospital and Research Center, comes from London. He has been in Riyadh one year and was attracted to sand sailing because it filled a void in his letisure time.

"When approached by a friend. Tony said, "to share the cost of the rig. I was at first dubious." However, he adds, "I have found it to be a lot of fun especially when the wind is strong to allow some 'two-wheeler' action."

Tony pointed out that one of the problems for the beginner is the fact that there is no brake on the rig and speeds can be deceptive. He explained that usually a novice's first response, when wanting to stop, is to dig his feet into the sand.

"It is quite possible." Tony said, "for the driver to break his leg."

Maintenance is slight for sand yachts, but a few snggestions are to be noted to keep your rig in good condition.
There are problems of forque stresses on the mast which can cause it to bend. As one becomes more familiar with the feel of the wind upon the sail, he becomes more efficient in the pulling of the "sheet" (rope controlling the direction of the sail and decreasing the pres-sure on the mast itself. Occasionally the bearings must be replaced in the wheels. It is possible for the sail to tear because of the stripping of the heavier winds and the battens (the rods of material that hold the sail stiff). Pockets may then have to he sewed occasionally as they may tear out. Spare parts can be obtained here.

The skill of this delightful experience lies in the art of coordinating the turning of the sail. Every sand sailer stress to make the most of windspeed as it hits the sail. The most direction. Added to the dilement. There are a few drawbacks ma of the novice is the fact it is such a new sport to the plenty of water and a broad rimmed hat can't remedy. If you become immobile in the middle of the desert for lack of wind the hat, and your trusty canteen strapped to your belt, hecome your saving grace as you "walk" your huggy. pulling it by the sheet.

A sati-ring can be bought in the United States for about $750 and in the Kingdom for SK-ROO. It weighs approximately '75 pounds and can be put in the back of a pick-up or a land rover, or on the top of a jeep or a car with a rock.

Ine two-seal model is another thrill, but not as poputar. for one must keep in mind that the heavier the booy weight, the stronger the wino must be. The "double-the-lun" design is at its best on beach areas where strong winds are more prevalent. A model of this design has been seen lately in Damman.

Some locations used for fine sailing around Riyadh are: about 20 kilometers past the University on Diriyah Roao, about 15 kilometers south past the International School; and 25 kilometers down Al-Knarj Road there is a nuge stretch by Holzman Camp of very tlat and smooth terrato. It was once a lake, something that might ease a boatsman's unease about shifting from water to sand.

Asked if there were any future plans in regard to the possibility of an organized suiting club, Beal said the enthusiasts were meeting to ascertain such things as: organization, testing for the best available location that could accomodate a given number of rigs at one time, and the attainable speeds most desirable for racing and judging. These and other items are being considered in order to plan a regatta to be held later on in the vear.

The sportsmans demand for speed and excitement lies here in this "rig of the desert." No jeep or any other mechanized vehicle can give quite the thrill ut moving so closely and so stlently across a terrain so titled with ancient drama. Sitting in a "ship of the desert," bouy and sand become as one, the solitude and romance of the desert seeps within as the powdery silt of ancient floods hlows solitly in face and hair.

Assume you're in three otrump and West leads a heart. The first thing you do mear. The irst thing you do when dummy appears is count your sure winners. Immediately, you see eight tricks: three spades, three diamonds, one heart and one club. Further study reveals that you can score a ninth trick if you find the discretish

But if your thinking stops right there, you're not trying hard enough! There is also another chance for the contract, and you should not

You duck East's queen of hearts at trick one, and also duck his heart return. West wins with the jack and con-tinues with the king of hearts. You win with the ace as East follows suit — marking West with at most four hearts - and play the A-Q-K of diamonds. You thus learn that West also started with four diamonds, and it might should attempt a club finesse to make the contract.

However, upon there is a much better chance forego the club finesse. In line with that, you cash on the third round of spades, because it no longer matters to you which opponent has the king. You simply exit from dummy with the eight of diamonds, knowing that nine tricks are absolutely certain. West wins dummy's fourth diamond and also cashes his trick if you find the diamonds fourth heart, but he is then divided 3.3, or if you try a club forced to lead a club into your

Soviet doctor warns on steroids

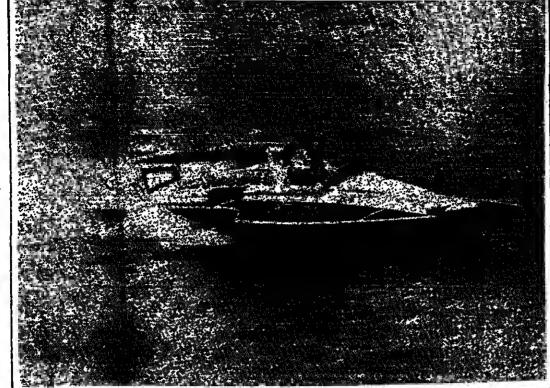

MOSCOW, Sept. 22 (AP)-A leading Soviet sports doctur has warned that addictive muscle-building steroids is increasing at an alarming rate among some coaches and athletes in the West

Viktor Rogozhin, bead of the 1980 Olympic Games Drug Committee and chairman of the U.S. Soviet sports doctors symposium that ended in Leningrad Thursday, said sporting contests should be the competition of athletes and not pharmaceutical firms.

Despite the han on their use in international competition. some coaches and sportsmen. Rogozhin said, are apt to describe to anabolics as "miraculous" in their effect on the general state uf the body, the appetite and the rapid build-up of the muscles."

But, he warned, tests conducted by Soviet, American and Canadian researchers show that such synthetic hormones have a "destructive influence" on the body and can lead to dangerous though delayed con-

Both the American and Soviet doctors at the conference agreed on the need to han the steroids completely among athletes, and appealed to sportsmen around the world to stop using them because of their potential dangers.

yers broke par. Ali given hero's welcome

Louisville kid comes home again

LOUISVILLE, Kentucky Sept, 22 (AP)—Muhammad Ali proved that you can go home again-and to a hero's welcome.

"I've heen bonored everywhere in the world, but there's nothing like being honoured in my home town," Ali told about 3,000 fans at a public reception at the Kentucky State grounds Thursday night.

They came from all overinner-city youths from Ali's for- tion."

Joe Martin, the former police officer who guided Ali toward the Golden Gloves Championship, observed, "if he loses once, I never saw him when he didn't come hack and win it. He's got a lot of determina-

But Ali was quick to disclaim the praise,

"God would punish me if I took credit for it," he said, introducing his father, Cassius Clay Jr. "he's the greatest in the world not me. He brought me into this world." The champ's mother, Odessa Clay, was ill and could not attend the reception.

When he arrived from Chieago Thursday afternoon, Ali iold reporters, "I'm not look-mer turf, former associates ing" for no recognition. This is my hometown and these are my people.

"It's always good to come back home, especially you're successful,"

The champ was equivocal about his plans, saying with a grin, "that fight was my last fight, hut I might fight again".

"I had to work too hard to get my title hack, and If I say I'm retiring, the commissioners would take my title away.

"I'm not going to fight no more, I don't need it, but I

Later, at a news conference. Ali said it was important to him "to be the first black man to get out clean with the championship." Rather than risk serious injury hy returning to the ring.

Ali also plugged the world organization he plans to promple peace and fight poverty.

Peking invites Caramanlis for official visit

ATHENS, Sept. 22 (AP) — Greek Premier Constantine Caramanlis has accepted an invitation for an official visit to

The Caramanlis trip will be the first of its sort between the two countries. The invitation amounts to an advance in the level of Greek-Chinese exchanges. It comes only two weeks after the Soviets invited Caramanlis to visit Moscow.

The Greek announcement came soon after Chinese Foreign Minister Huang Hua, on a four-day official trip to Greece, called on Caramanlis Friday for an hour of talks.

It said the date of the visit will be fixed later. has been no clear indication of casualties, although a bospital doctor who escaped in a callle Irock said that several hundred people had been killed and hardly a building remained un-

Strike

Opposition groups continued their nationwide strike to back their demand for Somoza's immediate resignation.

"The economic situation will be Somoza's Achilles' heel," a foreign banker in Managua

The general strike began Aug. 25. The government says the strike is ineffectual, hut food and consumer items are becoming scarce.

Carlos Tunnerman, a Somoza opponent living in exile in Costa Rica, said the National Guard has not really ended the rehellion.

"Somoza says he has won the war because he smashed the rehellion, hut in reality he has lost it," said Tunnerman in Costa Rica. "He has lost economically, civically, politically, Internationally."

Somoza's position is precarous, "The people no longer pay taxes and no longer obey martial law even though they might be killed," he said, American officials in Washington said the guided missile cruiser Richmond K. Turner was on a mission off the Pacific coast of Nicaragua. However, the officials would not comment on the mission of the 7,800-ton ship.

At a meeting of the Organization of American States in Washington, diplomats debated the Mcaraguan crisis and Assistant Secretary of State Warren Christopher offered the good offices of the United States to help solve the civil unrest which has plagued Nicaragua since January.

Central banks ditching dollars, claims U.K. financial magazine

LONDON. Sept. 22 (R) — Because of the dollar crisis there is a growing tendency among the world's central hanks to reduce the dollar share of their country's official reserves, according to the authoritative London financial review "Euromoney.

In an article in its October issue to he published on Monday entitled "How Central Banks are Ditching the Dollar, Euromoney reported that an increasing number of central hanks were either selling part of their dollar holdings or else buying other currencies than the dollar when adding to their reserves.

The purpose of such moves is self-protection in times of money turmoil such as the present one, which has been marked by a spectacular decline of the dollar against other major currencies. Roughly 80 per cent of the world's central bank reserves are at present held in dollars. Should any country panic be-cause of the doller's fall and start desperately trying to sell its dollar holdings, many economists think the effect on the foreign exchange markets could he disastrous and would push the dollar's value down much

The sterling crisis of 1976 is generally regarded as having been precipitated by the wasophisticated running down of sterling reserves on the part of a few minor central banks. Sterling's share of the official holdings of the 76 countries which report on their reserve Monetary Fund (IMF) declined from nine per cent in 1970 to 1.5 per cent in 1977.

"Euromoney" estimated that the 76 countries hetwech them held about $140 billion at the end of last year. Some of them, like the group of 10 leading industrial nations of the noncommunist world, cannot diversify their reserves because of internationally-agreed limits on what assets they can hold:

"Euromoney" said central banks were faced with an agonizing choice. They could either "stand idly by and watch the value of their national reserves slip with the dollar, or diversify out of the (U.S..) corrency ... and face a barrage of criticism that they have led the de-stabilizing stampede into the "In the longer term, in spite of the inevitable rallies and occasional recoveries in the dollar, the tide of opinion

Rhodesia forces press attack on Mozambique

SALISBURY, Sept. 22 (AP) — Rhodesian security forces continued air and ground strikes against black nationalist camps in neighboring. Mozambique Friday with no official indication when they would return to their hases,

As the cross-border forays went into their third day, a spokesman for combined operations headquarters here would only repeat Thursday night's statement that the operations launched against the (Zimbahwe African National Liberation Army) communist terrorist bases within Mozambique are continuing." Military sources said at least five camps had been hit, some of them understood to be up to 200 kilometers inside Mozamhique, and the strikes would continue until security forces were satisfied their aims had been achieved

From Umtali, the garrison town nestling in Rhodesia's eastern highlands only a few kilometers from the horder, Rhodesian air force bombers and fighters could be seen flying into Mozamhique, indicaring strong air support for the ground forces.

The first two days of the operation were believed to have heen supervised from the Um-tali military headquarters of Lieutenant General Peter Walls, hut he was understood to have flown hack to Salishury on Friday.

The original announcement by the military command on Wednesday said the Mozambique operation had been mounted "in self-defense," and was not aimed at Mozamhican troops or civilians.

The raids are aimed at bases of ZANLA army forces loyal to the Maputo-based Patriotic Front co-leader, Robert Mu-

The military announced two security force casualties, a hlack and a white, but did not say where the men were killed.
